SYNOPSIS

Aliyah in Hebrew means to go up and immigrate to 'Israel'; Yeridah means the opposite, to go down and emigrate. In 1970, the director's father, of Jewish descent, immigrated to Tel Aviv. He later returned to Chile and married a Palestinian. By exploring unspoken aspects and comparing his father’s super 8 footage with his own, the director tries to understand how a Zionist ideal is formed and then shattered.
